

Fall Bonnets.

Styles of bonnets for early fall have recently been imported from Paris. White French felt, in round hats and in bonnets, is, in some respects, a novelty. When the material is tastefully trimmed it is quite attractive. The white felt hats have an unusual-looking look, and though costly, are not showy. There is a new shape, narrow and long at the sides, evenly flat on top of the head, and drooping in front. Another is a small square of lace or silk upon a stiff frame, tastefully trimmed, having long lace streamers, and only covering the crown of the head. Among opera hats is a unique style, consisting of a small circle formed of five large velvet leaves, with loops of black chain falling below it, and wide streamers of gossamer lace (either black or white to suit the fancy of the wearer), attached at the side, and floating gracefully over the shoulders. One in form of the Gypsy queen has the edge pointed, resembling a star, and when finished with lace, flowers and pendants, is very pretty.

A decided novelty is brown velvet bonnets, the front close fitting, very much like the cottage shape, with a turban crown. It is trimmed plainly, a small white ostrich feather on one side, near the front edge, a strip of brown velvet on the opposite side of the crown, a velvet band the only inside trimmings with strings of white moire.

A beautiful evening hat is of Fanchon shape, made of marabout—a white, soft, wavy down—with a wreath of cherry colored velvet, flowers and green leaves around the edge, both neck and front.

Another pretty hat is of Fanchon shape, the center of marabout, and the edge consisting of two or three rows of velvet leaves, garnet colored and shaded from the lightest to the darkest hue, with a fall of marabout at the back.

Although very few flowers are used in decorating the pattern hats recently imported, yet the flowers on exhibition are varied, rich and beautiful, and doubtless will be employed profusely later in the season.

There is a new style of ostrich fringe, about two inches wide. It is formed of ostrich feathers, headed with jet beads. It will make a rich trimming, but will be expensive as well as elegant.

Plumes to be worn on the round hats are of all hues, and are more showy than usual. Black and white plumes are thrown into the shade by the display of orange, red, blue, green, purple, etc.

It is likely that much trimming will be fashionable this fall on bonnets, and on all apparel for ladies.

Beautiful.—When the summer day of youth is slowly wasting away into the night-fall of age, and the shadows of the past years grow deeper and deeper, as life wears to a close, it is pleasant to look back through the vista of time upon the sorrows and facilities of our earlier years. If we have a home to shelter and hearts to rejoice with us, and friends who have been gathering together around our firesides, then the rough places of our wayfarer will be worn and smoothed away in the twilight of life, while the sunny spots we have passed through will grow brighter and more beautiful. Happily indeed are they whose intercourse with the world has not changed the tone of their holier feelings or broken those musical chords of the heart whose vibrations are so melodious, so tender and touching in the evening of age.

The Louisville Courier says: There is one thing connected with General Grant that will roll down through history like the peal of a grand old cathedral bell on the Sabbath air. That is his speech at Indianapolis when called upon to make a speech to the crowd that had just refused to hear the President, Secretary Seward, and other distinguished gentlemen. He appeared on the balcony; a silence like that of death fell on the vast concourse. He said: "Gentlemen, an audience of you; go home and be ashamed of yourselves."

Sad and Beautiful.—Ex-Gov. Vance, of North Carolina, in a recent address before the literary societies of the North Carolina University, spoke as follows:

"No moments of victory are for us, no national jubilee can we celebrate, no songs of triumph can our maidens sing, or garlands of glory weave; there is no welcoming of returning conquerors nor erecting of triumphal arches for us, to console us for our great defeat and that heavy sorrow which never flitting, still is sitting in our household; and all that we have left for our comfort is the sad yet tender light which plays around the memory of those who died to make it otherwise."

"Pray, my lord," said a gentleman to a late respected and rather whimsical judge, "what is the distinction between law and equity court?" "Very little in the end," replied his lordship, "they only differ as far as time is concerned. At common law you are done for at once; in equity you are not so easily disposed of. The former is a bullet, which is instantaneously and most charmingly effective; the latter, is an angler's hook, which plays with its victim before it kills it. The one is prussic acid, the other laudanum."

It is said that during the Morgan raid in Ohio, a regiment of raw militia being drawn up before the newly elected colonel, he ordered the advance in the following Buckeye vernacular:

"Look wild that I tote your guns; prepare to thicken and go endways. Go afunkin'—gig!" and amidst such a yell as was never before heard in those "diggins" the gallant colonel dashed off in search of the "greybacks," followed by his impatient command.

A story is told of a Western candidate that came upon "a poor white man" who had a vote to give, if he did his own milking. The candidate, Jones, asked him if he should hold the cow, which seemed to be uneasy, and the old man consenting very readily, he took her by the horns, and held fast till the operation was done.

"Have you had Robinson (his rival) round here lately?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, he's behind the barn, holding the calf!"

A cloud of grasshoppers, sixty miles in width, are traveling across Kansas, from west to east, at the rate of about five miles a day. At last accounts they had reached Jackson county. Doors and windows were kept closed to prevent invasion by the countless myriads of these insects, and people venturing out were obliged to cover their faces as a protection against them.

Some fellow editor of a young lady named Anna Bread dropped the following from his pocket—We expect:

"White bolles their lovely grasses spread, And faye around them flutter, I'll be content with Anna Bread, And won't have any but her."

A good story is told of a hard shell baptist missionary in Medina, who had become mixed up in land speculations. On entering the pulpit, recently, he announced to his congregation at the opening of the services, that the text would be found in St. Paul's epistle to the Minnesotans, section 4, range 3, west.

Mr. Everett and Judge Story were at a public dinner. The ordinary toasts were given, when Judge Story arose and said, "Fame follows fortune where ever it (fame) goes." Everett replied, "Here's to the legal profession. It has never got above the first story" (Story).

An old bachelor says the talk of woman is usually about men, even their laugh is he, he, he!

A terrible catastrophe occurred in the city of San Francisco, Cal., a few days since. A building known as the Summer Street House, in Summer street, a few doors west of Montgomery, used as a boarding house, fell to the ground about 2 o'clock in the morning, burying in the ruins nearly all the occupants. The exact number in the establishment at the time is not correctly known, but it is thought to be between thirty and forty. Already eight persons have been taken out dead, and fifteen to twenty wounded.

The accident appears to have been caused by the following piece of gross carelessness: A cellar was being dug alongside the building, and those employed upon the work the day before went so deep as to undermine the east wall of the building to a degree that left it almost without support. Some time before the east wall fell, the proprietor of the house, hearing a cracking noise unusual in the building, thought there might be danger, and around the inmates. He had succeeded in getting his wife and child into the street clear of danger, and then foolishly returned and was caught in the corner as the side wall gave way. He was so near the surface when the police and firemen arrived on the ground and commenced to extricate him from his position, that he could be conversed with; and, indeed, a glass of brandy and water was passed to him through the aperture, and he was requested to keep up a stout heart, that he would soon be clear—when the front wall gave way and fell, covering him completely. He was gotten out soon afterward, but quite dead.

A trip down the Mississippi Central road, last week, as far as Oxford, afforded us a good opportunity to observe the growing crops along the road. From Jackson, as far as Middleburg, in Hardeman county, the cotton and corn crops both look tolerably well; but from there down we discovered a marked change. From Grand Junction to Oxford, the crops seem not to have been more than half cultivated, and the yield will be very short. About Oxford the farmers complain very much, say they will not make half a crop.—Jackson Whig.
